It is time to say goodbye to 2012 and to prepare for another new year. There is much to be grateful for during this holiday season as we are spending quality time with our family and friends. This has been another successful year for OnCyberPatrol, but it takes a team effort to make things work and part of that team is the audience that provides us with some great ideas. Many of you have helped us come up with ideas for comics and informative articles. It is the Soldiers in the field sharing with us some of the experiences and problems they encounter that keeps OnCyberPatrol relevant and helpful to the masses. We are the voice of the warrior, and we encourage each of you to visit our website:

Past comics and articles are archived for reference on our website as well. We hope everyone continues to enjoy the comic and article. Additionally, you can always submit article and comic ideas for consideration. We check our email daily and are looking for fresh ideas that will benefit the Army as a whole. We strive to address issues that are based on current events and trends that are of importance to the Army. Please submit any feedback or article ideas to the email listed:

Have a great holiday season and a Happy New Year!!!
